We want a gender equal AND digitalised bioeconomy

Digitalisation and automation of heavy jobs could have been one way to achieve a more gender-equal bioeconomy. But that has not been the case. Instead, the two already heavily male-dominated sectors have continued to be as male-dominated when they are joined in a digitalised bioeconomy. The report "Redefining digital bioeconomy" shows the need to work with the interface between gender equality, bioeconomy and digitalisation.

NordCrop helps us adapt to a changing global climate

A virtual meeting is coming up, 14-15 April 2021: "Phenotyping for abiotic climate stresses and yield" (day 1) and "Phenotyping for stresses" (day 2). Our research network NordCrop, will investigate how we can exploit new genomic and phenotyping technologies to identify more robust genotypes in key Nordic field crops (wheat, oat, potato and fodder grasses). This is the focus of the two days virtual meeting. Welcome to participate!

NKJ will increase Nordic cooperation in drought and other crisis

The most important issue for increased crisis preparedness for Nordic agriculture, is to create open channels between researchers and other stakeholders in the various countries. The existing knowledge and ongoing projects need to be Nordic rather than national, to be utilised effectively.
