Reindeer herding and forestry can coexist

Reindeer herding is under pressure. The film "Reindeer and forestry in the Nordic countries" focuses on options to solve potential conflicts between reindeer herding and forestry with dialogue and concern.

The film is made by Heurgren Film and Mats Hannerz with support from NKJ and our sister organisation SNS.

A lot to learn from Nordic cooperation on wild boar

The Nordic countries have different attitudes towards wild boar. Dangers and opportunities are given different weight, and the size of the population differs greatly in the different countries. Mapping the differences to identify the potential for collaboration, and to create a platform for future collaboration, is important.

NKJ coordinates a project that aims to map and manage the Nordic needs and prerequisites for controlling the wild boar population in the region.

The pandemic can help us create a resilient future

How to prepare agricultural, forestry and fishing industries to cope with a future crisis? The Nordic Council of Ministers has commissioned NKJ, SNS and Nordic Sustainability to investigate how the COVID-19 pandemic has affected the Nordic green and blue sectors, and to draw conclusions from this to ensure efficient management of future crises.
