Conference paves the way for future reindeer husbandry

The conclusions from the NKJ conference on challenges for reindeer husbandry in the Nordic region are now available in a report. The report also gives a long list of key take-aways from the conference. The importance of synthesis between traditional and scientific knowledge is one of the twelve points in the list. Download the report (below) to see all of the messages from the participating researchers, authorities, organisations and stakeholders.

If you missed out on the conference in Svanhovd, see the presentations now! We recorded the lecturers in all four parts of the conference:

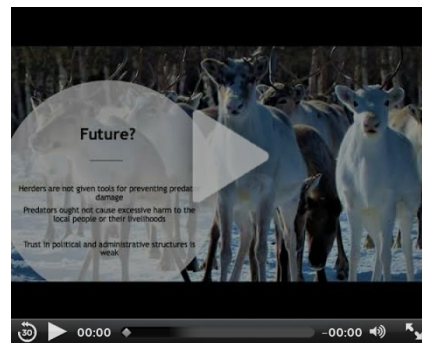

Part 1: Loss of reindeer to predators

Part 2: Governance

Part 3: Ongoing research projects

Part 4: Reindeer husbandry in a changing climate.

Above, you'll find a report with conclusions from the conference.

Spring – use the manuals for checking soil health

The growing season is here! But to be able to cultivate with a good result, the soil needs to be healthy. There are now manuals for everyone in the Nordic countries on how to check soil health, compiled by participants in the NKJ network Nordic Network on soil health (NetSH).
