OPEN CALL for Nordic synergies and knowledge exchange

This call is open (6 Nov 2023-31 Jan 2024) to applicants from all fields of research within food and agriculture. NKJ wants to facilitate collaboration between researchers in the Nordic countries and link national research projects where considerable positive outcomes can be reached through a wider regional scope.

Find interviews with earlier coordinators of NKJ funded networks here and here.

Let more apples reach the consumer

Only a minor share of the consumed apples in Nordic countries are domestically produced. Therefore, minimal post-harvest losses are critical to better satisfy consumers' demand for locally produced fruit and to improve growers' economy.

Nordic reindeer researchers appreciates the arena for exchange

The TARANDUS network is constantly growing, which shows that there is a need among Nordic reindeer researchers to gather and exchange knowledge and experiences. The network covers many aspects of reindeer health and welfare linked to climate change. Hear the coordinator of the network, Anna Omazic, tell about the activities and outcomes of the networking.

Dialogue can solve conflicts between reindeer herding and forestry

Reindeer herding has a long history in Sápmi, the northernmost region of Norway, Sweden and Finland. But the reindeer husbandry is under pressure. Mining, hydropower dams, windmills, roads, tourism and not least forestry have all made old migration routes, resting places and pastureland for reindeer herders decrease or become damaged.

The film Reindeer and forestry in the Nordic countries focus on the options to solve potential conflicts between reindeer herding and forestry. We meet reindeer owners and forestry servants in northern Norway (Alta), Finland (Ivalo) and Sweden (Jokkmokk and Sveg). They discuss the problems and how they can be overcome with dialogue and concern.
