

Integrating Readiness into Food and Agricultural Policy

Tõnis Tänav

Deputy Secretary General of Innovation and Strategy
Ministry of Regional Affairs and Agriculture, Estonia

26.05.2025

Policy Evolution: From Efficiency to Resilience

Past Approach

Market-driven food systems

Private-sector leadership

Change Drivers

Rising hybrid risks

Security concerns

Supply chain vulnerabilities

New Imperative

Active government role

System-wide resilience

Preparedness focus public-private partnership

Four Pillars of Food Supply Security

Strategic Implementation: 2023-2025

2023: Strategy Launch

Cross-sectoral collaboration and risk mapping

2024: Crisis Stores

46 operational, targeting 110 by 2026, desk exercises

2024: Fuel Reserves

Autonomous fuel storage program for primary producers

2024: Communications Network

Risk and crisis information sharing with the private sector, desk exercises

2025: Energy resilience

Battery storage and generators program for food producers

Near future Initiatives

Offline Payment Solutions

Retail transactions during connectivity disruptions

International Aid Pilots

Pilot programmes for international assistance

Early-Warning System

Proactive stockpile management

Local Government Integration

Coordinated regional response capacity

Governance Through Partnership

Insights and Challenges

Key Lessons

Clear roles, rapid decisions, continuously revised response plans

Ongoing challenges

logistics, info exchange, efficiency vs. resilience, balancing trade-offs between conflicting goals

Positive push factors

Estonia's adaptability and broad societal support

Looking Forward: Security as Process

Continuous Risk Identification

Evolving threat assessment and adaptation

International Collaboration

Shared strategies and best practices

Innovation Testing

Piloting new approaches and technologies

Culture of Preparedness

Ready for next crisis, or always just the last

Thank You!

Tõnis Tänav

tonis.tanav@agri.ee

Ministry of Regional Affairs and Agriculture